RHEUMATISM CURED.

DR. HEW'S Nerve and Bone Liniment and Indian Vegetable Elixir, is the only certain and effectual remedy for Rheumatism, Gout, Contracted Joints, &c. In the most severe cases the above application was never known to fail. We multiply a volume of testimonials to these facts, but prefer to have persons call where the above may be had, and where they can see such proofs of its efficacy, that would convince the most incredulous.

REDUCTION FOURFOLD IN PRICES—OR NOTHING.

An article that every family must consider indispensable, when they know its power and value and which has heretofore been sold too high to bring it to all classes, has now been reduced fourfold in price, with a view that rich and poor, high and low, and in fact every human being may enjoy its comforts; and all who get it shall have the price returned to them if they are not delighted with its use. We assert, without the possibility of contradiction, that all burns and scalds, every external sore, old or fresh, and all external pains and aches, no matter where, shall be reduced to complete relief in five minutes—saving life, limb or scar. No burn can be fatal if this is applied, unless the vital are destroyed by the accident. It is truly magical, in appearance, in its effects. Enquire for "Connell's Magical Pain Extractor," at Comstock & Co's, 21 Cortland street. Price 25 cents, or four times as much for 50 cents, and ten times as much for $1.

THE SICK HEADACHE.

THIS DISEASE is one from which arises more misery to the human family than is generally supposed; not being directly fatal, it is often neglected, or persons resort so much to the use of purgatives and other medicines as to impair their general health, and often induce fatal diseases. The article—Dr. Spohn's HEADACHE REMEDY, now offered seems to have overcome these difficulties. While its effects are most powerful and immediate in curing an attack or keeping it off, it is so perfectly mild and innocent as to be used for infants with the greatest effect and safety. This has now been tested by so many of the highest members of this community as to require no further proof.

LOOKING GLASS & PICTURE FRAME MANUFACTORY.

FAIRBANKS & HOLLAND, PEARSON'S MILLS.....BANGOR.

THE public are informed that we have established a manufactory for making LOOKING GLASS, PORTRAIT AND PICTURE FRAMES of all sizes and varieties. We have set up suitable machinery in all the branches of the business by which much labor is saved and the price of these rich and beautiful articles is greatly reduced, so that a fine article may now take the place of coarse and ill looking ones, and at as low a price. Large and elegant O G and bevel frames, and small bevel frames with rich mahogany veneer are manufactured in such quantities that we are prepared to answer, at short notice, all orders at WHOLESALE, by the hundred or thousand, at prices that cannot but be satisfactory to dealers. New frames fitted to Portraits, Looking Glasses or Pictures, or new glasses furnished and fitted to old frames. Dealers supplied with frames either with or without glasses. N. B. Orders respectfully solicited for single frames or by the dozen; and as this is a new branch of Home Manufacture to any extent, we trust the public will be ready to encourage and support the enterprise. For the convenience of our city friends, orders for frames of any kind may be left at the Hardware store of DAVID MOSMAN on East Market Place. Bangor, July 26, 1843—d&wtf

CAUTION.

To protect the public against the imposition that has been practised in filling the market with Stoves manufactured in the most imperfect manner and from poor materials, thereby injuring the character of the Air-Tight Stove, no person will be hereafter authorized to make the same without giving a guaranty of his faithfulness. Persons making, vending or using my Stove without authority, will at once be prosecuted. ISAAC ORR. Boston, Dec. 6, 1843. epist&epist

THE BOSTON ALMANAC, FOR 1844.

BY S. N. DICKINSON. WILL be ready for purchasers in the early part of December. Orders first received will meet with the first attention. It will contain A CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY, OF ALL THE BUSINESS PEOPLE AND FIRMS IN THE CITY.

Alphabetically arranged under each business, or profession. The advantages of such a Directory consist, in bringing to a point, from all parts of the city, the names of all persons engaged in each particular business. For instance, in a small compass, under the head of Hardware Dealers, will be found the names and places of business of all who deal in that commodity. So of Dry Goods, Leather, Furniture, Iron, Hats, Hosiery, etc., etc., etc.—all so arranged, that the reader may see, at a glance, the names of all those who are dealers in any one article. A variety of other useful and interesting matter will be found in this little volume. It will contain 25 or 30 pages more than heretofore, and be printed throughout on a new and beautiful Ruby Type, cut in Edinburgh, and obtained expressly for this work. The Calendar pages, as usual, will contain space for memoranda for each day in the year. It will be handsomely and substantially bound in cloth, and sold as usual, at 25 cents per copy. Orders may be sent to the Proprietor, S. N. DICKINSON, 52 Washington Street, or to Messrs. THOMAS GROOM & CO., 82 State Street. In either case they will meet with prompt attention. Boston, Nov. 17, 1843.

THE PILES AND ALL SORES.

HAY'S LINIMENT is known now to thousands, as a most extraordinary remedy for these affections. It is impossible to tell in a newspaper, in such a manner, as to obtain full credence, the effects and benefits of this article, so general is the practice of advertisers of extolling articles of no merit. Such personal reference will be given, as to bring conviction to the minds of the most unbelieveing. Will sufferers only ask among their friends, if they have not heard or known its effects; and if they do not hear it more warmly praised than any other salve, let them not get it. All fancy or exaggeration is positively excluded from the statements, and it is determined to say nothing of its merits, but what could be fully proved by a host of witnesses, in any court of justice. Will you look at the thing and the proofs where it may be had at G. W. LADD'S, A. P. GUILD'S, and A. YOUNG, Jr. & CO., formerly Holden's. 3twd and w6m nov 91

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Sabbath.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

It was a pleasant morning, in the time When the leaves fall—and the bright sun shone out As when the morning stars first sang together— So quietly and calmly fell his light Upon a world at rest. There was no leaf In motion, and the load winds slept, and all Was still. The lab'ring herd was grazing Upon the hill-side quietly—uncall'd By the harsh voice of man, and distant sound, Save from the murmuring waterfall, came not As usual on the ear. One hour stole on, And then another of the morning, calm And still as Eden ere the birth of man. And then broke in the Sabbath chime of bells— And the old man, and his descendants, went Together to the house of God. I joined The well-appeal'd crowd. The holy man Rose solemnly, and breathed the prayer of faith— And the grey saint, just on the wing for heaven— And the fair maid—and the bright-haired young man And child of curling locks, just taught to close The lash of its blue eye the while—all knelt In attitude of prayer—and then the hymn, Sincere in its low melody, went up To worship God.

The white-haired pastor rose

And looked upon his flock—and with an eye That told his interest, and voice that spoke In tremulous accents, eloquence like Paul's, He lent Isaiah's fire to the truths Of revelation, and persuasion came Like rushing waters from his lips, till hearts Unus'd to bend were softened, and the eye Unwont to weep sent forth the willing tear. I went my way—but as I went, I thought How holy was the Sabbath-day of God.

Live not to Yourself.

BY REV. JOHN TODD.

On the frail stem in the garden hangs the opening rose. Go ask why it hangs there? "It hangs here," says the beautiful flower, "to sweeten the air which man breathes, to open my beauties to kindle emotion in his eye, to show him the hand of his God, who penciled each leaf and laid them on my bosom. And whether you find me here to greet him every morning, or whether you find me on the lone mountainside, with the bare possibility that he will throw me one parting glance, my end is the same. I live not to myself."

Beside you highway stands an aged tree, solitary and alone. You see no living thing near it, and you say, surely that must stand for itself alone. "No," says the tree, "God never made me for a purpose so small. For more than a hundred years I have stood here. In summer I have spread out my arms and sheltered the panting flocks which hastened to my side. In my bosom I have concealed and protected the brood of young birds, as they lay and rocked in their nest; in the storm I have more than once received in my body the lightning's bolt, which had else destroyed the traveler; the acorns which I have nurtured from year to year have been carried far and near, and groves of forest oaks can claim me as their parent. I have lived for the eagle which has perched on my top—for the humming bird that has paused and refreshed its giddy wing, ere it danced away again like a blossom of the air—for the insect that has found a home within the folds of my bark; and when I can stand no longer, I shall fall by the hand of man, and I shall go to strengthen the ship which makes him lord of the ocean, and to his dwelling to warm his hearth and cheer his home. I live not to myself."

On yonder mountain side comes down the silver brook, in the distance resembling the ribbon of silver, running and leaping as it dashes joyously and fearlessly down. Go ask the leaper what it is doing. "I was born," says the brook, "high up the mountain; but there I could do no good, and so I am hurrying down, running where I can, and leaping where I must, but hastening down to water the sweet valley, where the thirsty cattle may drink, where the lark may sing on my margin, where I may drive the mill for the accommodation of man, and then widen into the great river, and bear up his steamboats and shipping, and finally plunge into the ocean, to rise again in vapor, and perhaps come back again in the cloud to my own native mountain, and live my short life over again. Not a drop of water comes down my channel, in whose bright face you may not read, "None of us live to himself."

Speak now to that solitary star that hangs in the very verge of heaven, and ask the bright sparkler what it is doing there. Its voice comes down the path of light, and cries—"I am a mighty world. I was stationed here at the creation. I was among the morning stars that sang together, and among the sons of God that shouted for joy, at the creation of the earth.—Aye, I was there

"When the radiant morn of creation broke, And the world in the smile of God awoke, And the empty realms of darkness and death Were moved through their depths by his mighty breath, And the orbs of beauty and spheres of flame From the void abyss, by myriads came, In the joy of youth, as they darted away Through the widening wastes of space to play, Their silver voices in chorus rung, And this was the song the bright ones sung."

Here, among the morning stars, I hold my place, and help to keep other worlds balanced and in their places. I have oceans and mountains, and I support myriads of immortal beings on my bosom; and when I have done this, I send my bright beams down to earth, and the sailor takes hold of the helm and fixes his eye on me, and finds his home across the ocean.—Of all the countless hosts of my sister stars, who walk forth in the great space of creation, not one, not one lives or shines for herself.

And thus God has written upon the flower that sweetens the air, upon the breeze that rocks that flower upon its stem, upon the rain-drops which swell the mighty river, upon the dew-drops that refresh the smallest sprig of moss that rears its head in the desert, upon the ocean that rocks every swimmer in its chambers, upon every penciled shell that sleeps in the caverns of the deep, as well as upon the mighty sun which warms and cheers the millions of creatures that live in its light—upon all has been written, "None of us liveth to himself."

And if you will read this lesson in characters still more distinct and striking, you will go to the garden of Gethsemane, and hear the Redeemer in prayer, while the angel of God strengthens him. You will read it on the hill of Calvary, where a voice that might be the concentrated voice of the whole universe of God, proclaims that the highest, noblest deed which the Infinite can do, is to be good to others—to live not to himself.

The Moral Power of a Kind and Gentle Spirit.

One of the most pleasing acquirements that adorn mankind, is affability. This one virtue calls into action many others, which, were it not for its influence, would probably be dormant.—But of itself, in its own intrinsic worth, it assuredly is the certain avenue of success in gaining the esteem and respect of others. Man's chief aim through this transitory life, is happiness, and the safest and the shortest method to obtain this blessing, is by the strict cultivation of amiability of manners and softness of temper.—How frequently do we hear the morose and sullen acknowledge that in their intercourse with man, an impression exists, that they had dealt with a gentleman, because he was amiable and gentle, and yet it does not follow that every one who shows forth this amiableness is a gentleman, but he can be no gentleman who does not possess it. In all walks of society this gentleness of temper, and of conduct, sheds its beloved influence upon those with whom it comes in contact, for the truth of Holy Writ assures us that a "soft answer turneth away wrath," and where, I would ask, is that being, young or old, that hath not experienced this truth? And does not this gentleness of temper ensure to the heart calmness of mind, and with it does it not command the respect of others? This is undeniable, for, gentle reader, have you not heard the remark of the ungoverned, "I could not say another angry word to him, he was so mild, so gentle in his speech and manners." Oh how insignificant does such an acknowledgement make the morose appear in comparison with this heavenlike ascendancy over our faults!

Give Religious Instruction Early.

Watch opportunities for this in every stage of childhood. Early impressions will last through life, when later ones fade away. Said an American Missionary, "I recollect particularly, that once my mother came and stood by me as I sat in the door, and tenderly talked to me of God and my soul's concerns; and her tears dropped upon my head. That made me a Missionary." Cecil says, "I had a pious mother, who dropped things in my way. I could never rid myself of them. I was a professed infidel, but then I liked to be an infidel in company rather than alone. I was wretched by myself. Parental influence thus cleaves to a man; it harasses him; it throws itself continually in his way." John Newton never could divest himself of the impressions of his mother's instructions.

A Christian Child.

What is it to be a Christian child? It is, to have such a knowledge of Christian objects, and such feelings toward these objects, as a child may have; to do all those things which such feelings naturally lead a child to do; and to avoid all those things which such feelings properly influence, would lead him to avoid. To be a Christian child is not to become a premature man—to have ideas and feelings which are appropriate to men—to act, in all respects, as men should act. It is not to go out of the sphere of childhood. It is to think, and feel, and act right, in that sphere—to be the same rational, moral, religious, amiable and holy being, in all the relations and circumstances of a child, which we are bound to be in the higher, and more responsible relations and circumstances of a man.

Habits of association with the most pious persons will do much to improve our religious discrimination. The effect upon our moral feelings, is like that of mingling in good society upon our manners. I wonder not that those church members who are estranged from the prayer meeting, fall into sin. How can they preserve a tender conscience, when they never come in contact with scenes which bring them into intimate communion with the pious and the good? If there are any spiritual members in a church, the prayer meeting will bring them to light. It is on such occasions more than in the public services of the sanctuary, that the holiest influence on each are exerted. The brother, therefore, who comes not within their reach, may expect to become a backslider. No matter how much of the power of the world to come he may have experienced, his moral perceptions will become so obtuse as to admit of his doing without remorse, things that would have caused him days of penitential sorrow. O brethren, we must be the companions of all those that fear God, if we would acquire the art of distinguishing between things that suffer.—[Reflector.

A Delinquent Subscriber's Soliloquy.

Yes it is so! Two years have flown, Since first I took my paper Time scarcely comes ere it is gone, Like transient blaze of taper.

Could I keep pace with his career, (Though ere so transitory.) And pay my printers' bills each year, 'Twere not so bad a story.

But now near twelve months, I find The printers have been drilling And dunning negligence like mine, And I've not paid a shilling.

The bill is now five dollars—near— It grieves me much to think it, When I have spent that, each year, For many a useless trinket.

Alas! how could I wrong the man, Who long has sent me weekly, So rich a treasure; and who can Endure such treatment meekly?

Of late I've suffered much from fear, And mental perturbation, Lest I should see my name appear In black list publication.

But thanks to Providence, most kind, The printer's long forbearance, I now will ease my troubled mind, By paying off my clearance.

There's left me now—ah, let me see, From wages of last winter, Only a solitary V, And that shall pay the printer.

My negligence in time that's past, I hope he'll not think hard on, For I will pay him well at last, And humbly beg his pardon.

REMOVAL.

The Whig and Courier Office has been removed to the spacious room in the second story of the Kenduskeag Market.

Candidates for Congress.

Election Monday Jan. 22.

Fifth Dist. EBEN R. HUTCHINSON.
Seventh Dist. THOMAS ROBINSON.

The result of the late trial to elect Representatives in the vacant districts shows conclusively enough that, in the Seventh District, at least, if the Whigs had been organized and had unitedly deposited their votes they would have elected their excellent candidate Thomas Robinson; and we have to regret, that they have let the golden opportunity pass without improving it. Mr Robinson would not only have been an honor to our State as a member of Congress but his influence would have been favorable to the success of the Whig cause and to the general honor and prosperity of the country. We cannot but regret, deeply regret that the favorable moment was not seized by our Whig friends in Hancock, Washington and Aroostook, and a good man and true from their district been placed in Congress.

We suppose it is past all hope now of electing their man but we think this case should serve as a lesson to the Whigs at all times and under all circumstances when called upon to vote to appear at the ballot box and deposit their votes.

Enlarged Bangor Courier.

Our enlarged weekly paper will be ready for delivery, in single numbers, on Monday afternoon. It will contain a story of thrilling interest—The Orphan Twins of Beauce; a laughter provoking account of the adventures of a Bashful Man; the Great Speech of John Quincy Adams on the Right of Petition; Serious Readings, of an elevating character; an intensely interesting Biographical notice of that wonder of the age, John Critchley Prince; Bank Note Table; Boston, Brighton, and Bangor Prices Current; Proceedings of Congress; a large amount of miscellany and news articles, poetry, editorials, &c.

For a single copy only four cents—thus making one of the pleasantest and cheapest messengers to remit to distant friends that can be found.

The Gazette, of Friday, speaks of the sufferings endured by the prisoners at the State Prison at Thomaston. If half that is related, be true respecting the unfitness of that place for confining human beings, and we are informed, by men who know something about the matter, that the statements made are unquestionably true, then it is high time that our Legislature should take the matter into consideration—send on a committee of their number to investigate the facts, and if health and comfort are to be alike forfeited by prisoners immured in the prison, let the facts appear, and some speedy and adequate remedy be provided. The idea of confining prisoners where they are exposed to have their limbs frozen, is abominable, cruel, outrageous, and a disgrace to the State.

The New York papers speak of the circulation of indecent and immoral publications, calculated to sap the foundations of virtue in the young, and to spread a pestilential poison in social life. These works are sold under scientific titles and by little boys in the streets! In this age of books and wickedness, parents and all interested, should beware of the books they put into the hands of their children, particularly if they are vended by pedlars.

All accounts from Washington seem to concur in the sentiment that the President is heartily sick and tired of the Van Buren managers, by whom he has been deceived and duped, and that he has resolved to guard the access to public favor with more prudence and jealousy than he has done. The nomination of Mr. Clarke, late Clerk of the House, to be Auditor, would seem to strengthen this belief. John Jones, in the Madisonian, has given an estimate on the Presidential question. He elects Mr. Clay in his estimate.

The Baltimore Sun states that Pennington is progressing with his steam balloon, and expects in the course of twelve months to be travelling before the wind. He has been for some time in the mountains of Virginia, constructing a model of his wonderful machine, and is now about to exhibit the same to Congress.

The Green Bay Republican of the 5th inst. says that the schr. Eclipse, owned and sailed by Mr. Luther Hagedorn of that place, was cast away about two weeks since, with a heavy cargo of iron and merchandise, and will be a total wreck.

A citizen named P. Jones, was killed near Cincinnati on Sunday week, by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of his companion; a twig having caught the cock of the gun, the charge went off, passing through the head of Mr. J., who survived but a few minutes.

The Abolition Convention at Utica, N. Y., has drawn up a long string of articles of indictment against John Quincy Adams, for his alleged recreancy to the cause of human liberty, and d vining and conjuring all Abolitionists no further to see a man or to do him honor.

Biographical.

Prepared for the Bangor Courier,
BY RICHARD W. TAYLOR, ESQ.

Those parallel circumstances and kindred images, to which we readily conform our minds, are, above all other writings, to be found in narratives of the lives of popular persons; and therefore, no species of writing seems more worthy of cultivation than biography, since none can be more delightful or more useful, none can more certainly enchain the heart by irresistible interest, or more widely diffuse instruction to every diversity of condition.

JOHNSON, RAMBLER.

JOHN CRITCHLEY PRINCE.

The subject of the following sketch is now a candidate before the British public for the highest literary fame with every prospect of success. He was born poor, in Lancashire thirty five years since. His father was a reed maker, and having a number of children, he was not always able to furnish them sufficient food or comfortable clothing. Poverty was their inheritance and hunger their constant attendant. They had no education but what a pious mother imparted in the intervals of her toil, and what they occasionally obtained at a Baptist Sabbath School. John, the subject of our present remarks acquired a taste for reading and while devouring the printed pages that fell in his way was often severely rebuked by his father. He would in consequence of this often rise stealthily from his bed at night, and by the expiring light of the kitchen fire read his books with intense pleasure. Poverty compelled the family to move to Manchester where John happened to get hold of a volume of Byron's poetry and to become acquainted with an old German soldier, from whom he gained much information. As he increased his intellectual treasures and amassed wealth, of heart he was growing poorer in his pocket. Destitution with its bleakness overshadowed the family.

An apprentice at nineteen years of age with an irrepressible desire for knowledge and with delighted eyes seeing every where the poetry of outward nature and feeding upon the unfolding affections of the heart, he fell in love with a girl poorer than himself. They were married and loved and starved together for several years, until the claims of two children for bread awoke him to a sense of their actual wretchedness. For him his country afforded no employment. He sought employment in France and then in Germany without success. He tarried five months in Germany obtaining occasional employment, but attended with constant suffering. Sometimes he did not eat for two days together and frequently he was only saved from starvation by begging a morsel of food. Wasting away, he set out, barefooted, penniless and hungry for his home. Sleeping under sheds and forest trees, singing ballads in the towns and drinking in inspiration from the natural scenery of the country and the solemn old Cathedrals which broke upon his enraptured sight, and with an unflinching reliance upon the justice of heaven, he at length reached his desolated home.

His wife and children were in the Alms House. He removed them to a garret in Manchester where for months they lived without fire, or furniture or suitable clothes. He sold his jacket for eightpence purchased a loaf of bread and fourpence worth of paper! He was a Pilgrim of Hope. His writings attracted attention for their elegance and power eagerly and literary friends, snatched him from his wretched situation to one of comfort and repose. The prospect now is that he will make the fortune of his publisher and his own and add to the fame of the land in which he had nearly finished for want of bread!

The following lines from the "Vision of the Future" will shew something of his poetic talent.

"Tis morn, but yet the full and cloudless moon
Pours from her starry urn a chastened light.
'Tis but a little space beyond the noon—
The still, delicious noon of Summer's night;
Forth from my home I take an early flight,
Down the lone vale pursue my devious way,
Bound o'er the meadows by a keen delight,
Brush from the forest leaves the dewy spray,
And scale the toilsome steep, to watch the kindling day.

The lark is up, disdainful of the earth,
Exulting in his airy realm on high;
His song, profuse in melody and mirth,
Makes vocal all the region of the sky:
The startled moor-cock, with a sudden cry,
Springs from beneath my feet; and as I pass,
The sheep regard me with an earnest eye,
Ceasing to nibble at the scanty grass,
And scour the barren waste in one tumultuous mass.

But lo, the stars are winking, and the dawn
Flushes and burns athwart the east;—behold,
The early sun, behind the upland lawn,
Looks o'er the summit with a front of gold;
Back from his beaming brow the mists are rolled,
And as he climbs the crystal tower of morn,
Rocks, woods, and glens their shadowy depths unfold;

The trembling dews grow brighter on the thorn,
And nature smiles as fresh, as if but newly born.
God of the boundless universe! I come
To hold communion with myself and Thee!
And though excess of beauty makes me dumb,
My thoughts are eloquent with all I see;
My foot is on the mountains,—I am free,
And buoyant as the winds that round me blow!
My dreams are sunny as you pleasant lies,
And tranquil as the pool that sleeps below:
While, circling round my heart, a poet's raptures glow.

We are perfectly astounded at the intelligence contained in a communication with the signature "A Mother." Will the writer have the goodness to be a little more explicit in a note to the editor?

Caleb C. Wingate, of Sebec, Me., was on Monday last elected as Representative from the District composed of Sebec, Milo, &c.

One of the largest pork butchers of Cincinnati has absconded, taking with him Thirty Thousand Dollars obtained on forged Bills of Lading of produce, pretended to have been forwarded to the Southern and Eastern Markets.

The Clay Club of Monongalia county, Va., have appointed two hundred delegates to the young men's Convention at Baltimore.

A Suggestion for a Public Improvement.

The following communication is well timed.—There is a deep conviction in the minds of our citizens generally, that some measures should be taken for the erection of a large and commodious hall, for public meetings, the accommodation of the Lyceum, public exhibitions, and the like. But how shall this be accomplished? This is a question of great importance, and by way of answer we think the suggestions of our correspondent are important.

There is in the minds of many great, dread of increasing the public debt of the city, or of incurring any liabilities beyond what are absolutely necessary to maintain, upon the most economical plan, our necessary corporate institutions and to discharge our municipal duties. This is all very natural and very proper; but still it may be found upon a thorough examination of the subject, that the city will be greatly promoting its own interest, and preparing the way for lessening, rather than increasing the burthens of taxation, by improving the city hall lot in the erection of a building somewhat upon the plan suggested in the following article. The subject appears to us worthy of attention and investigation.

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier:

I think the citizens of Bangor, must now be very well satisfied of the great necessity there is of having a large and commodious Hall. The Managers of the Lyceum could afford to pay a fair rent for the use of a central hall suitably adapted and arranged for the convenience of the members. I am aware that the city is already somewhat in debt, and our taxes consequently are not very light. Before the whole of the city debt becomes due, I think it is evident that the growth, increase, and wants of our city will require a larger and better building than the present inconvenient and ill-looking mass, which in charity to some individuals has been christened "City Hall." Now the suggestion I would make for the consideration of our citizens, is this:—That the old building be taken down, and a new one built on the same site. I would propose the erection of a building, sufficiently spacious to accommodate the City Council—the Post Office—the public meetings of our citizens—and also the United States District Court. The basement story might be fitted for stores. In my opinion, and I have heard many others express similar views, a building might be erected which would rent, in ten years, for a sufficient amount to pay the cost. It would increase the value of real estate in the vicinity, and more than all, would be of great public convenience. Without going into details, I would throw out these few hints, for the people to consider, and if they are of any weight let us act accordingly. Whatever is done, should meet the general approval of our citizens.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Dec. 25—Christmas. This great gala-day here (the substitute for the New England "Thanksgiving") brings with it its usual cessation from business, its social pleasures, its festivities, &c., for participation in the enjoyment of which both Houses of Congress (as you have already seen) adjourned from Friday to to-morrow—(Tuesday.) Many members are absent from the city, preferring (and wisely, I think) to spend this season of relaxation in labor with their families and friends at home.—Those who remain have thrown off the excitement of politics, and are seeking repose and amusement in the social circle and in the society of friends. Of course, no political news of importance is stirring; the waves of the political ocean are hushed to repose—quiet and stillness reign upon its surface.

To-morrow the work of legislation, or of deliberation preparatory thereto, is to be resumed. But little, however, will be done until after New Years. One of the first measures of the session, no doubt, will be the passage, at least by the House, of a bill to refund General Jackson's fine, the fate of which is less certain in the Senate, or there it will be more nicely scrutinized as to its provisions.

The President's Message, in the House, remains, or a portion of it, for debate and reference. The Committees have hardly commenced work, reports from whom are to be received before much progress is made. Action, however, sufficiently speedy for the good of the country, will be taken.

Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25, 1843. I learn that the Van Buren majority of the House have, upon consultation, determined to rescind the Twenty-first Rule. This is the result of the ten years' struggle. How the Southern members will like this we shall see; but the majority will be very large in favor of receiving all abolition petitions and papers.

It also appears that, as I hinted some days ago, the Western Van Buren men will bring forward a scheme for the reduction of the Tariff.

The President has not made up his mind as to the nomination of Mr. Spencer for the vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court. The Whig Senators, it is believed, have not yet determined what course to pursue with regard to the Cabinet and other nominations.

A New Comet.

Mr. Paye, one of the astronomers connected with the Observatory at Paris, France, at one o'clock on the morning of the 22d ult. discovered a comet near the star Gamma, of Orion, the position of the star was ascertained to be as follows.—On the 22d of Nov. 1843, at 14 hours, 44 minutes 11 seconds medium time at Paris, reckoned from mid-day, the right ascension of the comet was 81 deg. 5 min., and the boreal declension was 6 deg. 56 min. The sky was so cloudy on the following night, that it was only on the 24th that the comet was again seen, when its position was ascertained with complete precision. On the 24th of Nov., 1843, at 17 h. 14 m. 43 sec. medium time at Paris, counted from mid-day, the right ascension of the comet was 30 deg. 50 min. 42 sec. Boreal declension of the comet 6 deg. 30 min. 35 sec. Thus the apparent right ascension of the comet diminished by seven minutes of a degree within about 24 hours, and in the same interval of time the declension likewise diminished by 12 minutes. This comet presents a head so distinct that the observations are singularly facilitated. From the head slight trains of light diverge nearly opposite to the sun. The tail was about four minutes of a degree in length.

Dr. Smith, of the Observatory, Kensington, London, in a letter to the London Times, dated half past two, 30th Nov., 1843, gives the following account;—This comet was observed here with the five-foot equatorial, whose object glass is 4½ inches aperture, about 8 o'clock last evening; with the large achromatic, of 11 in. 7-10ths diameter, its nucleus, with powers of 150 and 300, seemed not round, but elongated in the direction of the tail, which latter, after moonset, extended about 11 minutes. It does not bear much illumination of the field, although it was easily found with an achromatic telescope of 2½ inches aperture. At 48 minutes 37 seconds after midnight its right ascension was about 5 deg. 21 min. and 37 sec., and its northern declension was about 5 deg. 34 min. and 32 sec., and it is very near the star A Orionis.

We should like to know what we have said against our "friend and late employer," Mr. John Burrill, except that he works in the Whig Office? Gazette.

We should like to know if it is anything against your "friend and late employer" that he works in the Whig Office?

The cost of transporting a barrel of flour from New York to Boston is twelve and a half cents, while the postage on a single letter from the same place is eighteen and three-fourths cents.

Temperance.

At a meeting of the Prudential Committee of the Bangor Temperance Association, it was

Resolved, That they "recommend to the Association a stated course of meetings for the purpose of Lectures, discussions and the collection and dissemination of facts in relation to Temperance."

The Association will meet at the City Hall on Monday Evening, January 1, 1844, on which occasion, it is expected that several gentlemen will address the meeting.

It is to be hoped that the hall will be filled; and that an interest will be awakened in the great cause of temperance, and a new impulse given to its operations.
